

Four Steps To A Successful Arts Integration Lesson

The BIG idea- What is the main point of the lesson? What is the one takeaway your students should remember in the future?*

Tipping the scales- Strive for a balance between arts and non-arts content in standards, concepts, and experiences. This balance may vary from lesson to lesson as you help students achieve mastery.*

Map it out- Carefully plan your lesson experiences by writing a sequential list of events. Imagine your students participating in the lesson and include a variety of tasks: writing, acting, drawing, etc.*

Show what they know- Demonstrations of mastery should include opportunities for students to engage in arts and non-arts content. Assessments should reflect the balance between standards/concepts.*
